Infamous and terrifying

AMC's first anthology horror series heads into Season 2

By Kenneth Andeel
TV Media

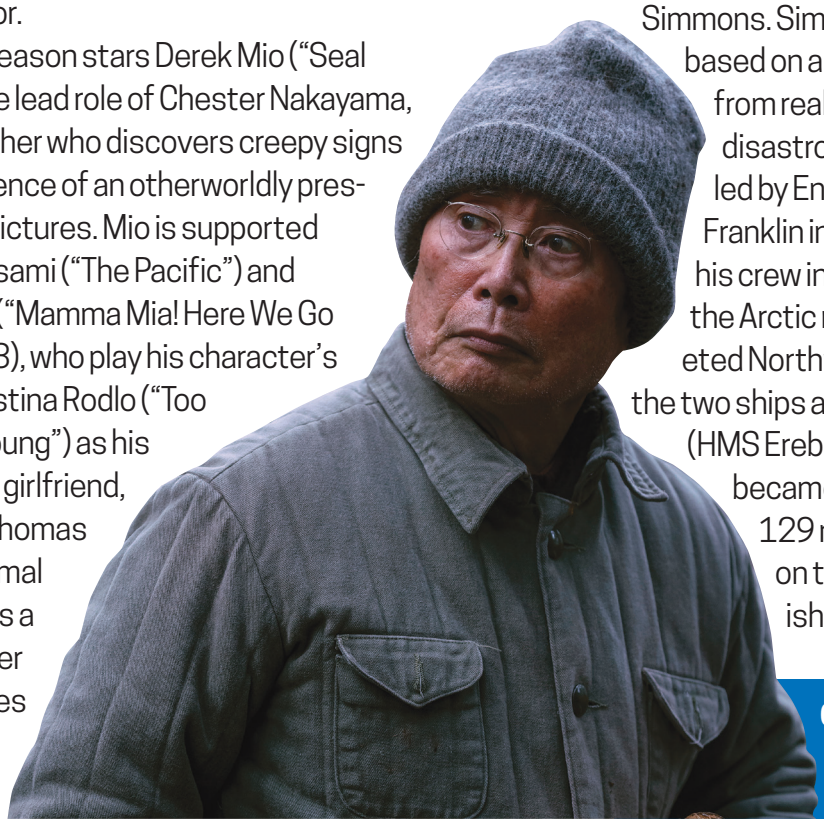
The first season of AMC's chilling series "The Terror" garnered rave reviews, so of course the network has brought it back for Round 2. On Monday, Aug. 12, the second season of the channel's hit historical horror series (now christened as a yearly anthology program) returns, dubbed "The Terror: Infamy."

The altered title helps audiences differentiate the new season's storyline from last year's, because this is not a continuation of the first season's story, but a whole new tale of, well, terror.

The new season stars Derek Mio ("Seal Team") in the lead role of Chester Nakayama, a photographer who discovers creepy signs of the existence of an otherworldly presence in his pictures. Mio is supported by Shingo Usami ("The Pacific") and Naoko Mori ("Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again," 2018), who play his character's parents; Cristina Rodlo ("Too Old to Die Young") as his clandestine girlfriend, Luz; and C. Thomas Howell ("Animal Kingdom") as a retired soldier who oversees functions within the War Relocation Authority, the agency established to conduct the relocation and internment of Japanese-Americans during World War II.

Rounding out the cast is beloved veteran actor and activist George Takei ("Star Trek"), who plays Yamato-san, an experienced elder able to offer Nakayama wisdom and help him navigate the perilous threat posed by spirits out of Japanese folklore. In addition to his onscreen role, Takei also served as a consultant for the production. Having lived in an internment camp himself when he was young, he was an invaluable source of knowledge.

The first season of "The Terror" went into development in 2016, and was adapted — quite faithfully — from the novel of the same name by science fiction and horror author Dan Simmons. Simmons' book is based on a legitimate incident from real-life history: the disastrous lost expedition led by Englishman Sir John Franklin in 1845. Franklin and his crew intended to probe the Arctic region for the coveted Northwest Passage, but the two ships assigned to the task (HMS Erebus and HMS Terror) became icebound, and all 129 men who set out on the expedition perished. The wrecks of their ships remained undiscovered until 2014 and 2016.



George Takei as seen in "The Terror: Infamy"

To the already terrifying prospect of becoming stranded in Arctic ice, Simmons added his own piece of supernatural flair to rocket the story into truly brain-breaking territory. He added an unrelenting Arctic demon known as the Tuunbaq, which pursued and savaged the doomed survivors as they struggled to boat, sled and hike their way out of the grip of the northern ice.

"The Terror: Infamy" replicates that formula of real human history paired with a supernatural threat, but it relocates to an entirely different era. This season features a community of Japanese-Americans during World War II who are imprisoned in camps set up by a paranoid U.S. government after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

These Japanese-American internment camps are seen as a shameful moment in American history, and the story of the camps remains largely unexplored by American television. No series has ever focused on life inside those camps, let alone one that features a majority Asian and Asian-American cast like "The Terror: Infamy."

The new season juxtaposes the cruel fate of interned families with this season's new iteration of occult monstrosity. Unlike the Tuunbaq of Season 1, which was an invention of Dan Simmons, the preternatural baddie of "The Terror: Infamy" is a creature inspired by Japanese folklore, known as a bakemono. In Japanese mythology, a bakemono is understood to be a shape-shifting entity that disguises its original form.

Season 2 of the gripping true crime show 'Mindhunter' premieres on Netflix

WHAT'S NEW ON NETFLIX:

"Mindhunter" Season 2

Fans of the popular Netflix original series "Mindhunter" can rejoice: after nearly two years of waiting, the show will return for a second season, set to premiere on Netflix on Friday, Aug. 16. This intense psychological thriller coming from producers David Fincher ("Gone Girl" 2014) and Charlize Theron ("Long Shot" 2019) is not intended for the faint of heart. For those who aren't familiar (or just need a quick recap), Season 1 introduced FBI agents Holden Ford (Jonathan Groff, "Frozen" 2013) and Bill Tench (Holt McCallany, "The Losers" 2010) of the Behavioral Analysis Unit, and Wendy Carr (Anna Torv, "Fringe"), a psychology professor. Set in the early 1970s, Ford, Tench and Carr are at the forefront of criminal psychology as they work to understand serial killers by interviewing infamous murderers such as Edmund Kemper (a.k.a., the "Co-ed Killer"). Season 2 promises to be even more intense, as the series leaps forward a few years to the late '70s, when iconic serial killers Charles Manson and David Berkowitz (a.k.a. "Son of Sam") are behind bars. As the still-green BAU interviews some of the most infamous killers in the world, the things they learn could change them forever. If you're a fan of true crime, dive into "Mindhunter" on Netflix.

WHAT'S NEW ON HULU:

"The Amazing Johnathan Documentary"

In the 1980s, a rebellious magician built a career on a foundation of shock value and deception, performing impressive stunts like popping out his own eyeball. This man was illusionist John Szeles, The Amazing Johnathan, whose career spanned more than 30 years before he was diagnosed with a heart condition in 2014 and was given a year to live, prompting his retirement. Three years after the diagnosis, he was still alive and decided to return to the stage for a comeback tour. Enter filmmaker Ben Berman, who showed up to capture the tour and give a behind-the-scenes look at Johnathan's eccentric life in "The Amazing Johnathan Documentary." What starts out as a simple documentary quickly spins out of control as the illusionist's insane lifestyle makes Ben begin to question his ethics as a filmmaker and a person as he falls into a rabbit hole of deception and drugs. When Johnathan drops a bombshell, Ben begins to delve further as he wonders: what's real and what's just an illusion? Find out Friday, Aug. 16, when "The Amazing Johnathan Documentary" premieres on Hulu.

HOLLYWOOD Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: When is the new season of "Long Lost Family" going to start on TLC? It's my favorite show.

A: "Soon." I know that's not much, but it's all they're giving us.

Both of "Long Lost Family's" hosts have shared pictures of themselves filming episodes of the upcoming Season 6. This is definitive proof that it's coming, which is the most important news. But they're both being cagey about when.

Lisa Joyner, for example, shared a picture of herself from an older episode on her Instagram account a few weeks ago. When a commenter asked if the show was renewed for a sixth season, she responded pretty quickly with a "Yes!" When the fan followed up with "When?," Joyner went silent.

By comparison, host Chris Jacobs was positively chatty about it. He posted a photo of himself shooting an episode of the upcoming season, and when he was asked when it would air, he replied, "Coming soon!"

This reticence could be a ploy to drum up some anticipation, or it could just be because they don't know either.

It's more likely the latter. If they're just filming, that means the air-date decision probably hasn't been made yet, and it could be a while.

The show has bounced around TLC's schedule a little, which is usually the case with reality shows on cable, so we can't make any predictions based on past air dates. However, we're coming up on a year since the last season, which premiered in October. This one may not follow a clear pattern, but a year between seasons of a cable reality show is uncommon.

Lisa Joyner in "Long Lost Family"

LATE LAUGHS

Conan

Facebook is introducing a new feature where you can select up to nine Facebook friends you would like to date. This new feature is called "cheating."

In Britain, tests of English river shrimp found that every single one of them had traces of cocaine in their system. That explains the No. 1 complaint about river shrimp: it tastes like it's been awake for days.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Today is the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 launch when we first went to the moon. Back then, everyone held their breath and no one knew if we would make it. Today, that's called flying Southwest.

We're in the middle of a giant heatwave right now with temperatures in the 90s. It's crazy out there! I sat on a bench for two minutes — when I got up, my pants had grill marks.

Officials are telling people that beer is not a good way to stay hydrated, and that you should drink water. When New Yorkers heard that, they were like, "OK, Coors Light it is."

Here in New York, the humidity is close to 100 percent! It's so humid, tonight's crowd is just last night's crowd, still stuck to the chairs.

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

I would like to congratulate the entire staff and crew of "The Late Show" because this morning we received four Emmy nominations. Of course, the real Emmy is the friends we made along the way. Unless we win. Then you don't need friends, 'cause you've got an Emmy.

Was President Trump's tweet about four freshmen congresswomen racist? Well I say if it looks like a duck and walks like a duck, it probably just told the geese to go back to Canada.
